

Are you wanting to follow your passion as a dietitian, but not sure how to start? I am seeking interest from dietitians to work in our very flexible private practice in Orange, NSW. This position will suit an experienced or new graduate dietitian who is interested in private practice in a regional/ rural setting.

Ward Nutrition is looking for a motivated and committed dietitian who wants to learn and develop their own skills as a dietitian with a focus on providing client-centred care, profound clinical knowledge, ability to set realistic goals, and provide practical advice to a variety of clients.

I am encouraging all dietitians to apply who want to challenge and upskill in their passion. This role welcomes dietitians who are interested in working with children and adults and are ready to take that next step in developing their career as a dietitian. If you are a new graduate, please still apply and training and development will be supported.

About Ward Nutrition: Ward Nutrition is a team of rural Dietitians who cover a wide variety of nutritional related areas. Ward Nutrition was established 10 years ago by Claire Ward, who has 23 years of experience as a dietitian. Ward Nutrition is the largest private practice dietitians in the Central West. Currently Ward Nutrition has 3 FTE Accredited Practising Dietitians who work with patients from a variety of areas, plus a full time practice manager and shared administration. We share a office space with physiotherapists, occupational therapist and exercise physiologists. This creates a team of learning with lots of support from all dietitians as well as a community and friendly vibe to work in. Common clientele we see our practice is disordered eating patterns, ARFID, Anorexia and Binge eating, fertility and pregnancy, sports nutrition, bariatric surgery and food intolerances. However, the successful applicant will be supported in their own passion and be encouraged to o promote themselves in their area of nutrition of interest.

The successful applicant will be predominately seeing private patients and will have the option service some local nursing homes and private hospital. The hours, days and pay will be flexible to the applicant and this can be discussed individually pending the applicants experience, personal and professional needs. The applicant should be open to challenging cases, and also act a support for the other younger dietitians. The ideal candidate will work alongside Claire in supporting the people in Orange and the Central West.

ESSENTIAL CRITERIA

- Accredited Practising Dietitian
- Preferred experience / interest in bariatric, eating disorders, gastrointestinal issues or food intolerances is desirable.
- Must have a drivers licence and ability to drive a manual car if required. Car will be provided for any home visits or out of office travel.
- Confident, professional and efficient in the work place.
- Ability to engage with a range of clientele.
- Comfortable working autonomously and capable of managing own workload.
- Ability to adapt to living within rural NSW.
- Good communication skills.
- New graduate may apply.

For further information – Claire Ward (director) E: Claire@wardnutrition.health Ph: 0447 995 688
www.wardnutrition.health Instagram: @wardnutrition Facebook: Ward Nutrition – Dietitians